Trimble communities awarded $1.22M for water projects

BY BOB DEMAREE

Trimble County has been awarded $311,106 for three drinking water and wastewater projects from the Better Kentucky Cleaner Water Program (CWP), along with a $909,500 Community Development Block Grant to the City of Bedford.

The grant to Bedford will support the Bedford Wastewater Improvements project, which also received CWP funds to replace three wastewater pump stations to better serve more than 300 customers. Additionally, $250,000 of the grant to Trimble County will go toward that project, according to Trimble County Judge/Executive Todd Pollock, who said that replacing the pump stations is an overall $1.8 million project, and that funding was very much needed since the pumps dated back to their installation in the 1980s.

The pumps are beyond their useful life as replacement parts are no longer available, said Pollock, a former mayor of Bedford. All three stations will be configured with SCADA (Supervisory control and data acquisition) controls, resulting in improved efficiency through the potential use of variable frequency drives (VFDs) and more efficient pumps.

"We're very fortunate," said Pollock, noting it's a project vitally needed to maintain clean drinking water for residents. "We would have had to sell bonds because we needed to do something," he said. "We can't have the pump station going down."

Pollock said $55,000 has been earmarked for the City of Milton

Mother, son die in apartment fire Monday night in Madison

Madison Fire Department Capt. James Thomas climbs a ladder to gain a view inside a second-floor window of a fully involved apartment fire at the Presidential Estates apartments Monday night in Madison. Cindy Geerts, 40, and her 15-year-old son, Conner Geerts, did not make it out of the structure and died of smoke inhalation, according to Jefferson County Coroner Rodney Nay.

BY MARK CAMPBELL

A 40-year-old mother and her 15-year-old son died in a late night structure fire at the Presidential Estates apartments Monday on Madison's hilltop.

Cynthia Elaine "Cindy" Sampson Geerts

Conner Zane Geerts

According to Madison Fire Department, the two occupants were reported to still be inside the residence when firefighters arrived to what was already a "well involved" fire at approximately 11:30 p.m.

"Fire suppression and rescue efforts were put in place immediately, but due to the fire's advanced stage, those efforts were slowed due to the structural compromise," said a release issued by Madison Fire Department. "The two residents were found inside the apartment but they had succumbed to injuries sustained from the intensity of the fire."

According to Jefferson County Coroner Rodney Nay, both victims — Cynthia Elaine "Cindy" Sampson Geerts, 40, and her son, Conner Zane Geerts, 15 — died from "smoke inhalation."

He said both had mobility issues — Cindy Geerts could not walk and used a wheelchair — and neither made it out of the burning structure.

The apartment, located in the 2800 block of Windridge Drive, was fully

Many voices raised to support Ohio Theatre

CAMILLE FIFE

When I first learned about the Many Voices concert to benefit the Ohio Theatre, coming up Nov. 13 at the Fairfield Inn ballroom, I was intrigued, but not really sure what to expect. I mean, after all, the musical line-up is all local talent I've heard many times before.

Jimmy Davis, Joe Perkinson, Deano Crafton, Amy Noel, Leah Pruett, Johnny & Sallie. Plus a core band composed of Brook and Carrie Reindollar, Chip Binzer, Chris Watson, Rick Bennett, Meg Bramer and Anthony Ray Wright. Also Snaps for Sinners will be coming to town for this event. These folks are great talents, to be sure. But what's different about this show?

U.S. 42 scheduled for two-year closure in Gallatin

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A section of US 42 in Gallatin County is scheduled for a lengthy closure beginning next week to reconstruct a 1.2-mile area prone to landslides along the Ohio River.

According to a statement by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, the closure will begin on Nov. 1 and take months to complete while rebuilding a section of the highway between Markland Dam and Craigs Creek. The closure is scheduled to last two years to allow crews uninterrupted access to make the repairs.

"Crews have been doing preliminary work since July, and now the next phase of the project is ready to go," said Bob Yeager, chief district engineer for the Department of Highways District 6 office. "The project will greatly improve safety by correcting landslide problems between

Madison offers safety tips for Halloween

BY BOB DEMAREE

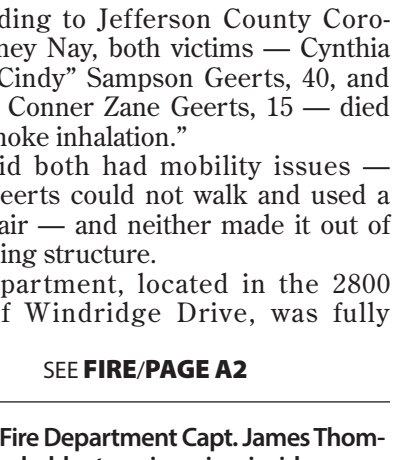
With all the fun that goes with Halloween, the City of Madison is encouraging families to take safety precautions to avoid potential dangers.

"Halloween is a holiday children and many adults alike look forward to," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney. "It's fun to see everyone in costume and going door to door trick-or-treating. Halloween also poses some potential dangers, so we want to offer some tips to keep everyone safe."

Courtney said it's frightening to realize that children are more than twice as likely to be hit by a car and killed on Halloween than any other day of the year with low visibility at dusk and dark contributing to this risk.

The National Safety Council (NSC) advises:

- Never allow children to go out alone. A responsible adult should always walk with trick-or-treaters.
- If you do allow older children to go out alone, review a route beforehand and agree on a time they will return home.
- Teach children never to enter a stranger's home or car.
- Tell children not to eat any treats until they return home, and can check for any that could cause an allergic reaction.
- Adults and children should put cell phones away and pay close attention while walking and crossing streets.



In addition, motorists should pay extra attention while driving on Halloween. The NSC urges drivers to follow these safety tips:

County adopts $24 million budget for 2022

BY BOB DEMAREE

A county budget totaling $24,040,323 was adopted by the Jefferson County Council at a special meeting on Monday called for that sole purpose.

The local fund total is $20,487,117 with the home-ruled fund total $3,553,206. The local fund will be sent for review to the Department of Local Finance, which has the option of making changes or sending it back to the Council, said Council President Pam Crozier.

The general fund was set at $10,449,679. The amount the animal shelter is slated to receive is $253,000, an increase over the $209,401 allocated this year. Earlier there was discussion that the animal shelter might be funded as much as $350,000, but Crozier said based on the timing of when the animal shelter budget was submitted and reviewed, the Council was not able to change it. However, she said next year's budget may include additional requests for animal shelter funding, particularly as the facility works toward hiring a new director. In addition, the Council may have to consider other sources in the county budget if additional funding is needed for the animal shelter.

In addition to the general fund and the animal shelter, the budget is divided with $250,000 distributed from the casino/riverboat fund, $78,830 for rainy day fund, $173,681 for election/registration, $170,000 for reassessment, $430,000 for cumulative Courthouse, $289,300 for community services, $3,805,255 for highway, $700,001 for local roads and streets, $1,613,829 for cumulative bridge, $741,215 for health, $33,139 for medical center, $702,080 for emergency phone system, $156,798 for cumulative jail, $11,000 for park board, $25,100 for cemetery, $507,210 for cumulative capital development and $97,000 for federal revenue sharing trust.

The adopted tax rate of 0.9044 is made up of the general (0.7649 tax rate), election/registration (0.0062 tax rate), 2015 reassessment (0.0071), cumulative Courthouse (0.0200), cumulative bridge (0.0579), health (0.0156), cumulative jail (0.0094) and cumulative capital development (0.0233).

The home-ruled funds total $3,553,206 in which County Auditor Heather Huff said are a culmination of grants, fees and revenue received from gaming.

VOICES

Camille Fife, organizer of the event and host for the evening. "You're going to hear these folks like you've never heard them before, it's very exciting!

"For example, we have Chip Binzer doing a Sinatra song. Jimmy Davis will be doing Minnie the Moocher, made famous by Cab Calloway. Amy Noel is doing a Celtic tune. And Leah Pruett is singing a Streisand song. Now picture this … Joe Perkinson as Phantom of the Opera! Deano Crafton is working on a blazing guitar song called Hummingbird. And Catherine Sallie Evans will be vamping out What Lola Wants Lola Gets.

"But maybe the one I'm most enthused about is Carrie Reindollar singing a song called Black Coffee. She absolutely kills it, and it's made even more astonishing because we almost never hear Carrie sing, she's always playing her horn. Just wait until you hear her!

"I'll be acting as host for the show," Camille continues, "and I'll open the event with a tune titled The Terrific Rainbow. That will kind of set the tone for the many colors of voices we are about to hear. I'll also sing a short piece by Handel that I really like, and we'll end the show with an ensemble version of Battle Hymn of the Republic.

"This entire event has been planned for some time as a benefit for the Ohio Theatre. In fact, it was our hope to present the show in the theater. But between COVID and renovation delays, we've moved it to the Fairfield Inn ballroom.

"The ballroom is a great venue, but the seating will be somewhat limited. I encourage people to get tickets now if they want to attend, before they are sold out. Just search 'Many Voices Concert' on Facebook and you'll find the ticket link. There is also an option to stream the show to your home.

"Theater has always been a love of mine, and I actually thought I might go into it as a career before kids and life intervened. Having a viable theater is an important artistic resource for any community. And right now, Madison really doesn't have that outlet available.

"That's why it's so important that we all work together to get the Ohio Theatre completed. I want to specially thank Morgan & Nay Funeral Home for being the primary sponsor for this event, and the 20 plus musicians who are donating their time and energy to make it possible."

If you'd like tickets for this event but don't want to purchase online, you can contact Rodney Nay at 812-265-5577 and he will take care of you.

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

Before we get to all the Halloween parties on Saturday, I want to make sure you take note of the show at Mad Paddle on Friday. The band madESSENCE is pretty much an All-Star lineup of Madison's finest musicians and singers, and they've cooked up a bunch of new songs for this go-around. On Saturday I count NINE live music events in Madison (and one in Friendship!) and every single one of them is encouraging costumes and promising some spooky Halloween fun. The party at Thomas Family Winery is the granddaddy of the bunch, going on 25 years. But Rusty Bladen is building his own tradition at Mad Paddle, too. Oh, and if you are an Audible Point fan from back in the day, you can catch them at their old haunt, the Electric Lady.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

engulfed when firefighters arrived and the building burned for at least an hour with flames spreading to the second floor and breaking through the roof before being brought under control using a variety of firefighting equipment and firefighters from both hilltop and downtown companies. The blaze also damaged an adjoining apartment

Located on a southeast corner lot near the south end of Presidential Estates with only one way in and one way out, fire trucks were positioned at locations to the south and west of the structure with other equipment located going north on Windridge to Ivy Tech Drive.

As the firefighters battled the blaze, residents from other apartments in the complex looked on, some shooting video of the raging fire with their cellphones and others weeping out of concern for their neighbors.

The cause of the fire is currently under investigation by the Indiana State Marshals Office, Madison Fire Department, Madison Police Department and the Jefferson County Coroner's Office.

"Our deepest condolences go out to the family for their tragic loss," MFD said in its statement.

Conner Geerts was a student at Southwestern High School. Funeral arrangements for both are pending at the Morgan-Nay Funeral Centre in Madison, www.morgan-nay.com.

HALLOWEEN

- Watch closely for children walking on roadways, medians and curbs.
- Be very observant when entering and exiting driveways and alleys.
- Watch for children in dark clothing, especially at twilight and at night.
- Discourage new and inexperienced drivers from driving on Halloween.

"We urge everyone to spend some time thinking about how to make the holiday safe," Courtney said. "By taking a few simple steps beforehand and staying alert during trick-or-treating, you can ensure a fun and safe time for all."

Meanwhile, the City of Madison Halloween Festival is 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday at Bicentennial Park. Following the festival, families can enjoy trick-or-treating at the City of Madison Campground from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Traditional trick-or-treat is scheduled for 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday in Madison and Hanover. In Kentucky, Bedford, Milton and Carrollton will hold trick-or-treat from 6 to 8 p.m. on Saturday. Switzerland County's trick-or-treat will be 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday in Vevay and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday in Patriot.

A Trick-or-Treat Drive-Through event will be held by Jefferson County Purdue Extension at Jefferson County Extension Office, 3767 West State Road 256, Madison, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and community groups are invited to participate. Visit Madison Inc. will hold its Jack-O-Lantern Walk and Trick-or-Treat from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday on the front lawn of the Lanier Mansion State Historic Site.

General Butler State Resort Park, in Carrollton, will hold the Butler Boo Bash this weekend with Halloween-related activities. Events include paranormal tours of the historic Butler Turpin House, hayrides, campfires, costume contests, and more. For more information, call the park at 502-732-4384.

for improvements to sewer lines, particularly with infiltration and inflow (I&I), a primary challenge of the Milton wastewater system for many years. The project will implement Phase 1 of a multi-phased approach to systematically narrow down the locations of I&I, identify the defects, and address the I&I sources.

Another $6,106 will go to a waterline extension project on Hardy Creek Road for cost overruns in which Carrollton Utilities has been working. The project impacts five households who will now have access to clean drinking water in their homes for the first time. Two of the homes currently utilize cisterns, while two other residences use hand-dug wells and one residence uses a creek for its water source.

"I would like to thank the Governor and the General Assembly for appropriating these funds for rural drinking water and wastewater projects," said Pollock. "Small counties like Trimble County are doing their best to stay up to date, but with the rising costs of repairs it would be impossible without the funds. I would also like to thank the individuals from KIPDA (Kentucky Regional Planning and Development Agency), Jarrett Haley, Danielle Story and Justin Carter for their hard work to make this happen."

The Trimble funds were part of an overall $16.5 million awarded Tuesday by Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear to deliver clean drinking water and improve sewer and water infrastructure in four nearby counties. Other counties receiving award commitments included Henry County, $592,224, to fund three projects; Oldham County, $1,565,673 to fund three projects; and Jefferson County, $14,079,994 to fund three projects.

"We are so thankful that the Commonwealth of Kentucky is back in the business of allocating funding for water and sewer infrastructure," said Henry County Judge/Executive John Logan Brent. "Without state and federal help, rural communities like ours would never be able to expand and improve the infrastructure that is vital to promote economic growth."

"As were building a better Kentucky, modern infrastructure is vital," said Beshear. "Today's awards from the Cleaner Water Program will ensure we can continue attracting new investors and providing clean water and quality service for Kentuckians. These are top priorities for my administration as we work to improve the lives of our families and create opportunity in every corner of Kentucky."

Funded by the American Rescue Plan Act and administered by the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority (KIA), $250 million was appropriated at the close of the 2021 General Assembly through a bipartisan agreement for clean drinking water and wastewater grants to fund projects across Kentucky.

The Kentuckiana Regional Planning and Development Agency (KIPDA) submitted the funding requests for these projects to the KIA. With the exception of Oldham County, the $16.5 million funding award uses the counties entire county allocation from the Cleaner Water Program.

OBITUARIES

Ann Farnsley

Ann Farnsley, 80, of Vevay, Indiana and Louisville, died Saturday, Oct. 23, 2021, at the Our Hospice of South Central Indiana Inpatient Facility in Columbus, Indiana.

She was born in Louisville on Nov. 14, 1940, to Charles and Nancy Farnsley. She graduated from the Kentucky Home School — now Kentucky Country Day — and earned bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Louisville. She also attended Cornell University in Ithaca, New York. She worked in Louisville for the Lost Cause Press, a family business, and lived in Vevay for more than 50 years where she was active in historic preservation efforts and worked in tourism and hospitality. She was a talented professional artist who maintained a studio in her home and particularly enjoyed her view of the Ohio River. She was a member of Christ Episcopal Church in Madison, Indiana. She enjoyed giving art lessons to her great nieces.

Survivors include her sister, Sally Farnsley of Arlington, Virginia; two brothers, Alex Farnsley of San Diego and Doug Farnsley of Louisville; and her nieces, nephews and great nieces.

She was preceded in death by her parents; a brother, Burrel Farnsley; and her former husband, Ron Gascoyne.

Funeral services will be at noon on Saturday, Oct. 30, at Pearson's Funeral Home, 149 Breckenridge Lane, Louisville. Cremation was chosen and the ashes will be interred in the Farnsley family lot at Cave Hill Cemetery in Louisville. Visitation will be from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday and 11 a.m. until time of services Saturday at the fuenral home.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Life on the Ohio River History Museum or the Switzerland County Historical Museum, both in Vevay. Online condolences www.pearsonfuneralhome.com.

Keaton Sullivan

Keaton "Keygo" Michael Sullivan, 19, of Madison, Indiana, died Friday, Oct. 22, 2021, in Madison.

He was born on April 26, 2002, in Madison, to Jason Michael Sullivan and Megan Nicole Rhodehamel Carter. He resided in the Madison community all of his life and attended school there. He had worked in construction in the area and was previously a team member at NVIC in the furnace room and at Meese as an oven operator. During his free time, he loved to go fishing, spend time with friends or turn up his music and go for a drive. He loved driving anything from cars to dirt bikes.

He was preceded in death by his grandfather, Randall Roberts; his great grandmother, Betty Jo Sullivan, his great grandparents, Robert L. Rhodehamel and Barbara Jane Rhodehamel; and an uncle and a great aunt.

Funeral services will be at 7 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 29, at the Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre in Madison. Visitation is 3 p.m. until time of services Friday at the funeral home.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Keaton Michael Sullivan Remembrance Fund through the funeral home. Online condolences and memorials, www.morgan-nay.com.

Ann Farnsley, 80, of Vevay, IN, and Louisville, KY, died on Saturday, October 23, 2021. Ann was born in Louisville on November 14, 1940. She graduated from the Kentucky Home School (now Kentucky Country Day) and earned a bachelor's degree and a master's degree from the University of Louisville. She also attended Cornell University. She worked in Louisville for the Lost Cause Press, a family business. She lived in Vevay for more than fifty years and was a valued member of that community. Ann was active in Historic Preservation efforts and also worked in tourism and hospitality. First and foremost, Ann was a talented professional artist. She maintained a studio in her home, and she particularly enjoyed her view of the Ohio River.

Ann was a member of Christ Episcopal Church in Madison, Indiana.

Ann is survived by her sister Sally of Arlington, VA, brothers, Alex of San Diego, CA, and Doug (Liza) of Louisville, and nieces, nephews, and great nieces. Ann was predeceased by her parents, Charles and Nancy Farnsley, her brother Burrel, and her former husband Ron Gascoyne. Ann's gentle spirit and good humor endeared her to her family and to her many friends. In recent years, she particularly enjoyed giving art lessons to her great nieces.

Our family extends thanks to the dedicated, caring professionals at Our Hospice of South Central Indiana and at the Hospice Center Inpatient Facility in Columbus, Indiana.

Visitation will be held at Pearson's Funeral Home 149 Breckenridge Lane Louisville on Friday, October 29, 2021, from 3:00 until 6:00 p.m. and on Saturday, October 30, at 11:00 a.m. A funeral service will be held at Pearson's at noon on Saturday. Ann's ashes will be interred in the Farnsley family lot at Cave Hill Cemetery in Louisville.

Donations in Ann's memory may be made to the Life on the Ohio River History Museum or the Switzerland County Historical Museum. The museums are located (respectively) at 208 and 210 East Market Street, Vevay, IN 47043.

'Messiah' calls for singers

BY THE COURIER STAFF

The Madison-Ohio Valley Community Chorus and Hanover College Concert Choir will perform selections from Handel's "Messiah" again this year. Rehearsals begin on Sunday, Oct. 24.

The chorus, now in its 46th season, is open to anyone who wants to sing, can attend rehearsals regularly, and can learn and perform the music. There are no auditions required to participate.

Rehearsal are held in the Fitzgibbon Recital Hall in the Lynn Center for Fine Arts at Hanover College each Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The chorus is under the direction of Dr. Madlen Batchvarova, professor of music and director of choral programs at Hanover College.

The concert will be held at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 21, in the Fitzgibbon Recital Hall. A link to the performance will be provided later as this year's performance will be viewed online.

The concert is sponsored this year by Psi Iota Xi Sorority.

Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Mr. Keaton "Keygo" Michael Sullivan

Mr. Keaton "Keygo" Michael Sullivan, age 19, of Madison, Indiana entered this life on April 26, 2002 in Madison, Indiana. He was the son of Jason Michael Sullivan and Megan Nicole Rhodehamel Carter. He resided in the Madison community all of his life and attended school there. Keaton had worked in construction around the area as well as being a team member for a time at NVIC in the furnace room and at Meese as an oven operator. During his free time, Keygo loved to go fishing, spend time with friends, or turn up his music and go for a drive. He loved driving anything from cars to dirt bikes. Keaton will be missed for his outgoing personality, fun-loving spirit, and robust sense of humor. Keaton died on Friday, October 22, 2021, in Madison, Indiana.

Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Mrs. Angelika "Angela" Wörner Garcia

Mrs. Angelika "Angela" Wörner Garcia, age 65, of Madison, Indiana, entered this life on December 7, 1955 in Langenselbold, Germany. She was the loving daughter of Heinz Wörner and Lina Ott Wörner. Angela spent her early life in Germany where she completed her primary schooling and continued on into trade school for pressing and printing designs into fabric. After her schooling she worked at a clothing store and furniture store in Hanau, Germany. On January 15, 1981, she was united in marriage to Jose Garcia. In her life, she was blessed to raise her children who were the delight of her life: Stefanie, Andre, and Carina. After her marriage, Angela immigrated to the United States where she first lived in New York and then in California, she settled with her family in Madison, Indiana in 1995. There she raised her kids and served faithfully for 23 years at Fashion Cleaners retiring from her role as manager in 2020. When not at work, she enjoyed most spending time with her family especially around the holidays. She was also an animal lover who took every opportunity to take in dogs who needed her love. But it was not only dogs who Angela "took in." She had a heart for people that led her to take them into her care as she did her son's friends and many others. Angela did not adhere to any specific religion, but when she was baptized by Gypsies early in her life she was told that she would make a difference in people's lives. Her family and friends can testify that this prophecy came true. She was a blessing to many, and she will be sorely missed and long remembered. Angela was blessed to reconnect with her first daughter, Jules who had been adopted early in life. Angelika died on Saturday, October 23, 2021, at 10:17 a.m. at the King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison, Indiana.

A LOVING FAMILY

Angelika will be missed by her loving daughters, Jules Mailis and her husband, Vasili of Germany, Stefanie Garcia of Madison, Indiana, and Carina Garcia and her companion David Meier of North Vernon, Indiana; her son, Andre Garcia and his wife, Sasha of Madison, Indiana; her mother, Lina Ott Wörner of Germany; her grandchildren, Martin, Sophie, Luka, Eli, Sawyer, and Danika; her sister, Gitte Mandic of Germany; her brother, Rolf Wörner and his wife Ewa of Germany; her honorary sons and her honorary daughter, Terry Webster and his wife Lydia of Madison, Indiana, Michael Hixon and his wife Carlene of Osgood, Indiana, and Jarred Burchfield and his wife Bre of Hanover, Indiana and Stephanie Morgan of Madison, Indiana; her nephews, Sebastian and Daniel; and her great-nephews, Luca and Nikolas. She was preceded in death by her father Heinz Wörner.

FUNERAL CEREMONY

A celebration of Angelika's life will be conducted on the Ohio River Waterfront as weather permits. Stay tuned to our website for a day and time.

Brother is deserting the family

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My slightly older brother and his spouse (in their mid-30s) are moving to Texas from California with their three toddler-aged children for no other reason than politics — politics to which no one else in the family subscribes.

I am unmarried and childless and have loved being "Auntie" from the moment these kids debuted. Actually, I moved back across the country after graduate school because I wanted to be a regular in their lives and not a "twice a year" relative. My parents are retiring within the year and were looking forward to being highly involved grandparents. My parents, my brother and I all live within 20 minutes of one another, and this move will bring our family life as we know it to an end. FaceTime is not a substitute for weekly hugs. Neither I nor my folks will be moving to join them as they hoped we would.

It wasn't up for discussion. The news was sprung on us suddenly and is in its final stage, and we never had the chance to say how having them live so close by has been an irreplaceable blessing. When they announced it, all I could muster to say was that I had no idea they were so unhappy here. I think I was too diplomatic in our initial conversation and responded by admitting that they needed to do what they believed was best for their family.

Our dilemma now is that if we tell them how much their close proximity means to us, they might stay and forever blame us for their unhappiness. Or, if we express our hurt, they may use this as a reason to not only leave but cut us out for good.

How do we let them go and move forward with our lives while also communicating that their decision is truly devastating for those they are choosing to leave? If they stayed, we would have an established family of four living, loving generations in one place. I do not believe moving to Texas, where they know no one, will make them happy. I am willing to admit that I might be wrong. — California Brood

Dear California Brood: Tell your brother how you feel — not as an ultimatum, but in the spirit of honesty and vulnerability. Don't tell him what he should do; just tell him how you feel, and leave the decision up to him. Be sure to let him know that you will support whatever he decides.

It sounds like your family comes first, and that is a beautiful and commendable thing. But not everyone has the same priorities. Perhaps your brother needs to spread his wings and leave the comfort of his hometown. Or perhaps his priority is his own family rather than the preferences of you and your parents.

Part of being a family is supporting one another's goals, even if we don't necessarily agree with them. Besides, 1,500 miles has nothing on a strong family bond.

38-year-old child

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am 38 years old with three kids ages 18, 15 and 13. I just recently moved back home with my mom because I was in an abusive relationship. Well, my mom is treating me like a 15-year-old. I cannot come and go as I please, and I do not even go anywhere except to run basic errands. I do all the cooking, most of the cleaning and whatever else she asks me to do. I do not complain about anything; I just do it.

Last weekend, I wanted to go out with a friend for dinner. Well, you would have thought I slapped my mom in the face. She got so mad, stomping around, slamming doors and cabinets. And she is so mean and rude to all my friends. It's just pure silliness. What can I do to make her realize that I'm not a 15-year-old? — Full-Grown Adult

Dear Full-Grown Adult: First of all, congratulations on getting you and your children out of an abusive environment. That was a brave and absolutely crucial decision.

Your mother was kind enough to let you — and, presumably, your kids — stay with her while you get back on your feet. But since it is her house, you're going to have to play by her rules.

If you want to be treated as the adult that you are, you've got to act like one — and that includes paying your own rent.

Dear Annie: I'm writing in response to the father who has been in "Toothy Turmoil" with his wife's concern for their children's ability to brush their teeth on their own.

As an orthodontist, I see children with various levels of tooth-brushing abilities every day. For those still struggling, we offer "disclosing tablets." These are little tablets which, when chewed and swished around the mouth, stain the bacteria (plaque) in the mouth a pinkish color. The child can plainly see this and is instructed to brush until the stains are gone.

This allows the patient to learn where they need better care, and in the case of "Toothy Turmoil," would allow Mom the confidence to let her children brush on their own while still giving her the ability to monitor their thoroughness without hovering. — See It and Believe It

Dear See: You've posed a fun, interactive solution for kids and parents alike — a win-win all around. Here's to healthy habits and happy brushing.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book — featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette — is available as a paperback and e-book. Visit http://www.creatorspublishing.com for more information. Shawe Theatre to stage 'Little Red and the Hoods' this weekend

BY BOB DEMAREE

When she was younger, Kelly Rector remembers watching a production of "My Fair Lady" when near the end an actress stepped away from her role to hand Kelly a flower.

"That meant so much to me, and it connected me to the theater world," said Rector, who now heads up Shawe's theatre department.

She's hoping that same connection to the audience will provide a similar kind of meaningfulness when Shawe's theatre department performs "Little Red and the Hoods" at 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 29 and 30, in Hilary Meny Gymnasium.

"Little Red and the Hoods," written by Karen Boettcher-Tate, is a remake of the classic Little Red Riding Hood tale that's a story within a story and chock full of audience participation.

In the play, a traveling theatre toupe called the Raggletaggle Players thinks it should be in a place called Uppington-Puppington, but somehow lands in Madison, Indiana. "They take lots of wrong turns," said Rector, and they get lost, which results in the audience participation.

Being a play within a play, the Shawe students are performing the roles of the actors in the theatre troupe along with the Little Red Riding Hood characters. Alexa Bomholt plays Stephanie, the leader of the troupe, and also serves as the narrator. Lakin Tingle plays Zelda, who is also Little Red Riding Hood. Brody Haggerty plays Humphrey, an old Shakespearean actor, and also takes on the role of Harry Wolf. Jennifer Avalos plays Maggie, and performs as Little Red's mom and granny. Lilly Waller plays Mrs. Weazelbud, along with Ma Sugar Lump.

Rector said adults will enjoy the play, but also encouraged families to bring children, whether they're home schooled or in elementary school because there are themes with modern lessons for today's children.

"It deals with literacy and the need to be able to read," Rector said. "Harry Wolf can't read and they teach him how to read." She said the play also teaches not judging people by their looks and how to protect yourself from strangers.

But even with the themes for children, Rector said, "It's not just for kids, but for people who are young at heart," adding that people of all ages will enjoy the audience participation.

Meah Massie, a sixth grader who enjoys theater, has been helping with the production along with Rector's nine-year old son, Lucas, filling the roles of audience participants in rehearsal.

For the actors, the play is different than a typical production where actors follow the lines in the script because the audience participation requires being prepared for whatever may come from the audience. "I enjoy the audience participation," said Tingle.

"You're staying in character, and that makes it more challenging, but also more fun."

Rector noted all actors, in addition to their performances on stage, will have behind-the-scenes roles. "Each student has taken on a technical role," said Rector, whether it's set design, costumes or whatever is needed for production of the play.

Tickets are only available at the door — $10 for adults, $5 for students of any school and free for children ages 5 and under.

Jefferson EMA urging residents to sign up for county Rave alerts

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency has launched a new mass notification system to provide alerts for severe weather emergencies.

"Personal safety is at stake," said EMA Director Troy Morgan, noting the county's new Rave alert notification platform will provide alerts in less than a second. "It's very responsive. It's very quick."

Morgan said Rave strengthens the ability for Jefferson County officials to "communicate with residents when it matters most. This service allows for critical communication with the public and provides individuals with the information needed to stay safe or take precautions during hazardous or emergency situations."

Rave allows individuals to receive notifications sent from state and local authorities to stay informed on potentially hazardous situations involving weather, traffic and other emergencies, and will replace the county's former Nixle alert system. Both platforms are currently available but the county's contract with Nixle will end later this year so Morgan expects the service to be discontinued within the next 30 days.

The switch to Jefferson County Alerts, powered by Rave, will allow residents to receive alerts via phone, text and email as well as answer poll questions that could give Jefferson County officials critical information during emergency situations, Morgan said. The alerts will provide information regarding emergency conditions with tailored updates based on their specific needs and geographic locations.

Residents can sign up for the free service by texting JeffersonEMA to 81437, which automatically establishes the link for tornado warnings, but it also provides a link to sign up for other alerts. There is also an online registration for notifications at www.smart911.com/smart911/ref/reg.action?pa=jeffersoncountyin.

The service is also available for landline phones, and that option can be selected at the registration link. Additionally, for those not able sign up themselves, they can have a friend or family member sign up for them but they need to choose which notifications they wish to receive.

Morgan said the movement toward a new platform began in 2019 when, during a severe weather event, Nixle failed to provide notification, and Morgan had do that manually. Since then Morgan stays awake any time there is a threat of severe weather to ensure that alerts are made when needed and in a timely fashion. He said efforts were made to work with Nixle to resolve the issues, and while progress was made, county's administrators ultimately decided to replace Nixle with a new system. In addition to Morgan, the administrators include Sarah Morgan, administrative assistant for the County Commissioners; Susie Lawrence, 911 executive director; Tammy Monroe, health department administrator, Shane Williams, King's Daughters' Health EMS director; and Hannah Fagen, communications director for the City of Madison.

Morgan said the process of finding a new platform began with watching demonstrations and included input from neighboring counties on which platforms they use. "We narrowed it down to three, then selected Rave system as what is best," Morgan said.

Over the last three weeks, the county has worked to set up the Rave system locally. On Tuesday, Jefferson County EMA officially began promoting the system to county residents and encouraging sign ups.

Morgan said the alert response time with Nixle was 20 to 30 seconds and "what we get from Rave is less than a second." Sarah Morgan noted that Rave provides many more options and allows county residents to receive notifications about not juts emergencies but also notices like holiday reminders on trash pickup or whether the truck has been delayed during a route.

"It's a much more robust platform," said Troy Morgan, on the possibility of more information notifications being available in the future for county residents.

Morgan is hopefully that county residents will sign up for Rave. With 31,000 Jefferson County residents, he hopes that at least 10,000 register. In 2019, there were 9,000 signed up for Nixle, but Morgan said that number has dwindled to 700, which he said is an indicator that people had "lost faith in the old system. We knew we had a problem and we, as a group, worked to address that and resolve with this new system. I have all the faith in the world that (Rave) is much better."

8TH REGION VOLLEYBALL TOURNAMENT

Young Raiders fall to Simon Kenton

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

EMINENCE — Trimble County didn't get the win, but the Raiders were able to walk off the court with their heads held high in their first-ever match in the Eighth Region Volleyball Tournament at Eminence on Tuesday.

Trimble County lost in three sets, 25-14, 25-17, 25-17, to powerful Simon Kenton, but the Raiders led in every set and played close until the closing points of each.

Considering the fact that Trimble had never before played at this level, and that the Raiders posted just one win two years ago, head coach Shawna Jent was overjoyed at the way her team performed.

"I'm super proud of them. I mean, we hung in with them and we led every match. We had a moment where we led but we just couldn't keep that intensity on the court," Jent said. "And they still don't believe in themselves. They still don't believe that they're meant to be here and that's something that we just talked about, working on that mentality. But they played well. Our defense was amazing tonight."

Like most people, Jent had her reservations about facing the Pioneers, who came into the match with a 24-9 record as champions of the 32nd District. But while she was confident that her team belonged, she also wasn't sure how they would hold up.

"I told the girls that we wouldn't be able to get an ace off of them and what happens right off the bat, an ace," Jent smiled. "They all looked at me and said 'you lied to us!' "

Trimble got more than just an ace against Simon Kenton. Throughout the three sets, the Raiders were able to hang tough into the teens before the Pioneers would make a small run of six or seven points that proved to be the difference.

Hanover men's golf finishes 21st at Guilford

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover men's golf closed out the fall portion of its season by placing 21st in the O'Briant Jensen Memorial event hosted by Guilford College in Greensboro, North Carolina, on Tuesday.

The Panthers shot a two-round total of 672 (325-347) at The Cardinal by Pete Dye course. Methodist won the event with a 589 (292-297).

Dawson Long led the Panthers with a 157 (78-79), which was good for a tie for 34th. Luke Van Leeuwen tied for 89th with a 167 (79-88), Griffen Reynolds tied for 97th with a 174 (85-89, Bing Wilson tied for 109th with a 176 (85-91), and Cole Ruttinger was 113th with a 177 (83-94).

Hanover returns to action March 14-15 when it competes in the Asbury Spring Invitational in Nicholasville.

AP Preseason All-America Team named

Zag's Timme unanimous pick; IU's Jackson-Davis 1st team

BY JOHN MARSHALL
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

Drew Timme could have left for the NBA after leading Gonzaga into last season's national title game. He likely would have been drafted and gone on to have a solid career.

But Timme wanted more. Certainly, a chance to finish off a championship run, but also to work one more season with coach Mark Few.

There was an added benefit, too: Timme was the lone unanimous selection by a 63-person media panel on The Associated Press preseason All-America team released Monday. He was joined by Illinois big man Kofi Cockburn, UCLA guard Johnny Juzang, Villanova point guard Collin Gillespie and Indiana forward Trayce Jackson-Davis.

"I love it here. It's a great place. It's where I want to be," Timme said. "When I do something, I feel like I have to be the best version of myself and I felt like there are some things I needed to work on in order to accomplish that. Coach pushes me every day, we had some talks and I felt like it was the best move to me, the most logical move, especially with talking with coach and my family."

Timme transformed from a freshman backup to one of the nation's best big men last season, earning second-team All-America honors. He was a key cog in Gonzaga's return to the NCAA title game, averaging 19 points and 7.0 rebounds while creating matchup problems for nearly every team the Zags faced.

The 6-foot-10 forward can shoot from the perimeter, post up smaller players, is an adept passer and has excellent footwork, attributes that had him projected to go late in the first round or early in the second of the NBA draft.

Timme's return was a key to Gonzaga being voted No. 1 in the preseason AP Top 25 despite losing several key players.

"I think what will be new, unique, is how fast we'll be able to learn and put together such a new group," Timme said. "I don't think there's been a group that's come through GU that's been so young and lost so much."

Cockburn faced a similar decision before opting to return to the Illini after weighing the NBA for a second straight year. The 7-foot center averaged 17.7 points and 9.5 rebounds per game as a sophomore last season to earn a second-team spot on the AP All-America team.

He was projected to be taken in the late first round or early second round of the NBA draft, but returned to cement his legacy at Illinois.

"I feel like if I could weigh the value of leaving after my freshman year and playing in the NBA," Cockburn said. "Now, I feel like this is definitely more valuable, just having a legacy and having a home and somewhere you're going to be remembered forever."

Juzang's stock rose after UCLA's improbable run to the Final Four last season.

The 6-foot-6 guard was one of the breakout stars in March Madness, shooting 51% while averaging 22.8 points.

His 137 points were the second-highest NCAA tournament total in UCLA history.

"I'm just trying to get better across the board," he said. "Keep growing as a leader and really all aspects of the game."

Gillispie was honored on senior night at Villanova and seemed to be on his way to a professional career before suffering a season-ending knee injury late in the season. He was cleared for workouts in August and is raring to go after missing out on the NCAA Tournament.

"He's almost like a freshman, itching to come back," Villanova coach Jay Wright said.

Jackson-Davis has been Indiana's best player the past two seasons, leading the Hoosiers in scoring, rebounding and blocked shots.

After considering a jump to the NBA, the 6-9 junior opted to stay to round out his game and, hopefully, lead the Hoosiers to the NCAA Tournament for the first time since 2016.

"My freshman year I didn't have a say in anything," Jackson-Davis said. "I just kind of just held my tongue. I felt like last year I did it better, not to the best of my abilities, but I spoke up a lot more in the locker room. This year I think I'm taking the full pledge to try to lead guys on our team, especially the younger guys."

Braves overcome Morton injury, top Astros in WS Game 1

BY BEN WALKER
AP BASEBALL WRITER

HOUSTON — A healthy swing by Jorge Soler powered the Atlanta Braves to a smashing start in the World Series.

Making his first start since testing positive for COVID-19, Soler became the first player to begin a World Series with a home run and the Braves, despite the loss of pitcher Charlie Morton to a broken leg, hushed the Houston Astros 6-2 Tuesday night in Game 1.

Boosted by a strong bullpen effort, a two-run homer by Adam Duvall and a late sacrifice fly from Freddie Freeman, the Braves coasted in their first Series appearance since Chipper Jones and their Big Three aces ascended in 1999.

Jose Altuve, Carlos Correa and the Astros mostly looked lost at the plate. This is their third World Series in five seasons — and first since their illegal sign-stealing scheme was revealed.

Before the game, Major League Baseball Commissioner Rob Manfred said there were plenty of sleuths monitoring the

Blowouts on the rise through NFL's 1st 7 weeks

BY JOSH DUBOW
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

The NFL has been highlighting the big number of late comebacks, overtimes and last-minute finishes so far this season.

There also has been a increase in blowouts — with last week one of the most lopsided the league has seen in years.

Cincinnati, New England, the Giants, Tennessee, Tampa Bay and Arizona all won by at least 22 points on Sunday as more than half of the games that day were blowouts.

There have been 21 games so far decided by more than 21 points, tied for the second-most since the merger through seven weeks. Only the 2009 season had more with 23. The NFL averaged less than 13 of these blowouts in the first seven weeks in the past six seasons.

The six games decided by at least 22 points on Sunday marked just the third time that has happened on a single day in the past 100 years, with the others coming on Oct. 25, 2009, and Sept. 7, 1986.

The average margin of victory on Sunday was 20 points, marking the third day since the merger when at least four games were played and the average margin of victory was at least 20 points.

When it comes to nail-biters, there have been 24 contests decided by a score in the final minute, 11 OT games and 29 wins by teams that trailed at some point in the fourth quarter.

TURNAROUND TEAMS

Half of the division leaders are teams that didn't make the playoffs in 2020, led by the NFL's sole remaining undefeated team in NFC West-leading Arizona. The Cardinals (7-0) last made the postseason in 2015.

AFC North leading Cincinnati (5-2) also hasn't made the playoffs since 2015, and finished last in the division the previous three years. In 16 of the past 18 seasons, a team has gone from last to first.

The droughts for two other division leaders are slightly shorter, with the AFC West-leading Raiders seeking their first playoff bid since 2016 and the NFC East-leading Cowboys (5-1) looking to get back for the first time since 2018.

At least two teams have won their divisions the season after missing the playoffs in 17 of the last 18 years.

STREAKING

The Cardinals and Green Bay Packers head into their Thursday night game on impressive streaks. The Cardinals have won seven straight, while the Packers have won six in a row since a season-opening loss to New Orleans.

This marks the first time since 2018 when the Rams played the Saints that both teams entered on winning streaks of at least six games. The Saints won that game, but lost the rematch in the NFC title game that season.

The Saints won 10 straight after losing their opener that season. The Packers are chasing that with six straight, becoming the 11th team since the merger to following a season-opening loss with at least six straight wins.

Miami and Houston are going the other direction with six straight losses after winning in Week 1, becoming the 24th and 25th teams to do that since the merger. The only other time in the past 33 seasons that two teams did that came in 2003, with Detroit and Atlanta.

CHASING HISTORY

Rookie receiver Ja'Marr Chase is doing his best to settle the debate about whether the Bengals made the right choice to draft him fifth overall instead of an offensive lineman.

The 21-year-old Chase had eight catches for 201 yards and a TD last week against Baltimore, becoming the second-youngest player to record a 200-yard receiving game. Mike Evans did it ay age 21 years, 87 days old — 150 days younger than Chase.

Chase did set a record with his 754 yards receiving so far this season, the most ever for a player in his first seven games, 69 yards more than Harlon Hill had in 1954.

Chase, who also had 159 yards receiving and a touchdown catch in Week 5, is the fifth rookie since the merger to have multiple games with at least 150 yards receiving and a TD catch. Randy Moss is the only player with three games in 1998.

Chase isn't the only rookie pass catcher putting up impressive stats. Atlanta tight end Kyle Pitts had seven catches for 163 yards last week, the fourth-most yards by a rookie tight end.

Pitts also had 119 yards receiving in his previous game before a bye, joining the Raiders' Raymond Chester (1970) as the only rookie tight ends with at least 100 yards receiving in back-to-back games.

Pitts' 471 yards receiving broke Mike Ditka's mark of 444 for the most by a tight end in his first six games.

ON TARGET

Raiders quarterback Derek Carr barely missed on Sunday.

Carr completed 31 of 34 passes for 323 yards against Philadelphia.

Carr's 91.2% completion rate is the second-highest by a quarterback in a game with at least 30 attempts, trailing only Drew Brees' 96.7% against the Colts in 2019.

The only other time a QB completed at least 90% of passes with at least 30 attempts was also by Carr, who went 29 for 32 (90.6%) against the Broncos in 2018.

Rejuvenated Wentz has Colts' offense running in high gear

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Carson Wentz needed a fresh start. The Indianapolis Colts gave him a chance.

Now, as the midway point of the season nears, Wentz is rounding into form, winning games and starting to play with the efficiency and effectiveness scouts always envisioned.

"I think we ran the ball fairly well, and then Carson made some plays down the field," coach Frank Reich said after Sunday's rain-drenched 30-18 victory in San Francisco. "Obviously, we had the big one to (Michael) Pittman, and then I think we had three pass interference (calls) on deep balls. That's the advantage, when you get with a quarterback who trusts his receivers."

Clearly, Wentz has found a comfort zone after missing most of training camp because of left foot surgery, missing several more days of practice after going on the reserve/COVID-19 list before the opener, and then spraining both ankles in a Week 2 loss to the Los Angeles Rams.

He played the following week at Tennessee but struggled to move around in the loss and wound up protecting himself with multiple throwaways.

Since then, though, Wentz's health and performances have improved dramatically. He's thrown for two touchdowns and no interceptions each of the past four weeks, tying Peyton Manning's franchise record for most consecutive games with multiple TD passes without an interception. And Wentz nearly matched the franchise record with a fourth straight single-game passer rating of 115.0 or higher — something only Manning, the late John Unitas and Andrew Luck previously did.

Wentz was 17 of 26 with 150 yards, a rating of 106.2 and one TD run in the rain.

But Wentz doesn't care about stats or critiques because he's too focused proving he's back to being a confident, complete player.

"We came out and told coach, 'Hey, shots are there, we're going to throw it,' " Wentz said. "We've got the guys, we've got the playmakers, specifically Pittman. We said 'Let's still be aggressive and not let the weather completely change who we are.' Be smart. Pick and choose our opportunities, but I really appreciate coach trusting us to call those plays."

WHAT'S WORKING

Pittman. The second-year receiver has 32 receptions for 479 yards with two TDs and two 100-yard games over the past six weeks. He's already surpassed last year's single-season totals for yards and scoring catches with 11 games left. And when he's not making catches, he's drawing penalties.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

Offensive line. 2020 All-Pro guard Quenton Nelson drew two penalties after returning from a sprained ankle, Wentz fumbled a snap, and two-time Pro Bowl left tackle Eric Fisher still isn't in form after returning from a torn Achilles tendon. When this unit really starts clicking, Indy's offense should take off.

STOCK UP

Jonathan Taylor. He's rushed for more than 100 yards three times, posted a 100-yard receiving game and scored six TDs in the last four games. Yes, he lost a fumble Sunday, but he's become one of Indy's most consistent — and electric — players.

STOCK DOWN

Receivers other than Pittman. With T.Y. Hilton and Parris Campbell both injured again, Indy's other receivers have struggled to produce consistently. Indy needs a stronger supporting cast to keep the momentum going.

INJURIES

While Nelson returned after missing three games with a sprained ankle, Hilton (quad), right tackle Braden Smith (foot/thumb), defensive end Kemoko Turay (groin) and cornerback Rock Ya-Sin (ankle) missed the game. Cornerback Xavier Rhodes had an interception after appearing to hurt his left calf during pregame warmups, and was a major asset after starting safety Julian Blackmon suffered a season-ending torn Achilles tendon in practice last week. The only new name on the injury list was backup cornerback BoPete Keyes (hamstring).

KEY NUMBER

10 — The Colts forced four more turnovers Sunday, giving them 10 in the past four weeks. They're tied with Buffalo for the league lead in takeaways (16) and are second in turnover differential at plus-9.

Louisville prepares to open season without coach Mack

BY GARY B. GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Chris Mack will have a lot of time on his hands in November watching Louisville basketball from a distance.

The fourth-year Cardinals coach is suspended the first six games this season by the school for failing to follow university guidelines in the firing of ex-assistant Dino Gaudio last spring. Though Louisville said in release that Mack was "the victim" of an extortion attempt — which culminated in Gaudio receiving a fine and probation after he pled guilty to a federal charge — Mack was still disciplined in the latest embarrassing episode for the men's basketball program.

That will take Mack away from the squad he reshaped after missing last spring's NCAA Tournament — and leave his calendar wide open during an ordinarily busy opening month.

"I have no idea what it's going to be like, so I don't think I can do a whole lot of anything," said Mack, who can return on Dec. 1 at Michigan State in the Big Ten/ACC Challenge. "Take my kids to school. Sit tight until I pick them up."

That development — which preceded amended NCAA allegations earlier this month for improper activities and recruiting moves — explains Mack's intensity installing an up-tempo offense with a revamped roster featuring eight newcomers. Assistant coach Mike Pegues will be Louisville's acting coach when he departs, but until then Mack is driving home every nuance of new assistant Ross McMain's scheme — a dramatic upgrade from last year's plodding attack that left Louisville 13-7 and outside the NCAA Tournament.

"I mean, I feel urgency every day and it puts me on pins and needles (for) Nov. 9, not being there," Mack said of the work needed before the opener against Southern. "You've got a six-week chart from what you have to get in, where you're constantly assessing where you feel like you're at. You always feel that pressure."

Mack has been encouraged by players' determination to quickly build chemistry since arriving on campus. But he cautioned that work remains with several transfers among the new faces.

Senior guard Noah Locke averaged 10.6 points per game with 57 3-pointers last season at Florida. He's part of a backcourt that includes graduate transfer Jarrod West, who left Marshall as its career steals leader. Sophomore forward Matt Cross averaged 6.9 points at Miami (Florida) and scored 16 points against Louisville last season.

They join a returning nucleus including 6-foot-11 senior Malik Williams and junior wing Samuell Williamson (10.4 points per game). While the season's first month usually features adjustments anyway, Louisville faces more transition than usual with Mack's pending absence.

"It's going to be big for us to get through those first six games and keep our heads high," Williams said, "but I believe we'll do a good job with it."

Indiana, Purdue face more quarterback questions after losses

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Purdue coach Jeff Brohm will stick to the plan. Aidan O'Connell will continue to start and the Boilermakers will continue to use a three-man rotation.

Indiana coach Tom Allen might not have a choice as his top two quarterbacks battle injuries.

With both offenses struggling and both teams coming off deflating, double-digit home losses last weekend, the quarterback quandary took center stage again Monday.

"We've got to be as efficient as we can and be able to do multiple things with each, if and when they go in," Brohm said. "We'll prepare to play anybody that we need to to help us win."

The biggest problem for Purdue's quarterbacks has been productivity.

While Jack Plummer won the starting job during the summer and led the Boilermakers to three wins in their first four games, he was pulled in the second half of two games Purdue scored a total of 26 points.

Brohm went with O'Connell the next week, a loss to Minnesota, before unveiling the rotation scheme in a shocking 24-3 victory at then-No. 2 Iowa. Against Wisconsin, the Boilermakers offense produced only one score in a 30-13 loss, spurring yet another round of quarterback questions.

Purdue's other major concern is a running game that has been grounded since Zander Horvath was injured in Week 2. He's expected to practice this week though it's doubtful he'll play at Nebraska, meaning Brohm needs to see more out of O'Connell, Plummer and Austin Burton.

"Right now we're limited at the running back position — one scholarship running back available," Brohm said. "While running isn't Aidan's game, he still has to. He's been told every game, 'I need three or four runs from you from designed pass plays that aren't there, so you have to force yourself to be smart with the football, and while you have thrown the ball in some tight windows, you can't always do that.' "

At Indiana, the situation is different.

Michael Penix Jr. missed the last two games after separating the AC joint in his throwing shoulder and on Saturday, Jack Tuttle injured his right foot while throwing a touchdown pass to Peyton Hendershot on the opening drive against No. 5 Ohio State.

Tuttle missed the next two series then returned briefly on Indiana's fourth series but left again after two snaps and did not return. Donaven McCulley and walk-on Grant Gremel teamed up to finish the 54-7 loss.

Allen didn't provide many details on Tuttle's injury though he did list Penix and Tuttle as week to week.

NCAA gender equity report shows spending disparities

BY DOUG FEINBERG AND ERICA HUNZINGER
AP SPORTS WRITERS

The NCAA spends more on average on male athletes than female ones, particularly when it comes to the "mere handful of championships" viewed as revenue sources, according to a new report.

The law firm hired by the NCAA to investigate equity issues released its 153-page report Tuesday night, which includes a series of recommendations to improve the gap among all sports tournaments. It's the second report from the firm, following its Aug. 3 one that recommended how to equalize men's and women's basketball tournaments.

The NCAA has implemented some of those, including allowing the women's tournament to use the term "March Madness."

"The same structural and cultural issues that impact Division I basketball pervade the NCAA and have shaped its treatment of other championships," the report said. "The NCAA membership's heavy reliance on the money it receives from NCAA revenue distributions has placed pressure on the NCAA to maximize that revenue and minimize spending so that more funds can be distributed to the membership."

Tuesday's report shows spending per Division I and national championship participants, excluding basketball, was about $1,700 less for women's participants than men's in 2018-19. The NCAA spent $4,285 per men's participant versus $2,588 per women's participant.

The gap is even greater in the six single-gender sports like wrestling and beach volleyball — $2,229 more per student-athlete for the men's championships than for the women's.

The review also found that sports with combined their championships have fared better on gender equality.

"We have seen that combining at least some portion of the men's and women's championship for a given sport enables more coordinated planning, increases equity in the goods and services, facilities, and resources provided at the championships and eliminates or reduces disparities between the 'look and feel' of the tournaments," the report said.

Another piece of the report shows NCAA doesn't have the infrastructure in place to encourage equal sponsorships at all championships.

"The report identified important recommendations, which we will prioritize and sequence so they can be implemented for impactful change," the NCAA Board of Governors said in a statement on the institution's website. "These changes may require altering budgets and business models while evaluating the balance between resources devoted to championships that produce revenue and resources for those that do not."

The review was done by Kaplan Hecker & Fink LLP, which was hired in March after the NCAA failed to provide similar amenities to the teams in the men's and women's Division I basketball tournaments. The situation blew up on social media amid player complaints and prompted apologies from NCAA executives, including President Mark Emmert.

Brady's monumental game included memorable mementos

BY ARNIE STAPLETON
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Tom Brady had one memento he wanted back from a fan in the stands and one he wanted to give his biggest little fan after his latest historic performance.

Both of the Brady admirers left Raymond James Stadium happy and sporting swag on the day Brady led Tampa Bay's 38-3 thrashing of the Chicago Bears and became the first player in NFL history to throw for 600 touchdowns.

Mike Evans grabbed touchdown No. 600 with six seconds remaining in the first quarter and promptly dropped the ball to flex. He quickly chased down the ball, but not to hand it back to Brady. Instead, he gave it to a fan in the end zone seats, then briefly celebrated with his quarterback before both jogged back to the Bucs' sideline.

Now, if Brady were the control freak Peyton Manning was, the football never would have left the field.

When Manning broke Brett Favre's record with his 509th touchdown toss seven years ago, Demaryius Thomas tossed the historic football to Emmanuel Sanders, who threw it to Wes Welker, who chucked it to tight end Julius Thomas as Manning played "Monkey in the Middle" and "tried" to get his hands on the historic pigskin.

After the game, Demaryius Thomas revealed that Manning had orchestrated the game of keep-away and that they'd even practiced it late in the week, just like they rehearsed everything else during the four seasons the meticulous Manning played in Denver.

Evans, who would catch two more touchdown throws from Brady in the game Sunday, was caught off-guard once he returned to the sideline and realized what he'd done.

"I gave the football away!" he told coach Bruce Arians, a look of dismay rushing across his face as he sat on the Buccaneers bench.

Arians joked after the game that he told Evans he was going to have to offer the fan two jerseys to get Brady's ball back.

"And he said, 'Does he really want that ball?" Arians recounted. "And I said, 'I'm getting he wants that ball.' "

Good bet.

"It's really cool. I got it in the bag over there," Brady said after the game. "Mike gave it away and said: 'Man, I'm sorry.' I said, that's all right, I'm sure they'll figure out a way to get it back."

A team official retrieved the football from the fan in exchange for another game ball and other goodies.

"I don't actually keep too many things. In that circumstance, I just felt like that might be a good one to keep," Brady said.

Told that the fan gladly returned the memento, explaining he couldn't possibly say no to Tom Brady, the quarterback replied, "That's pretty cool. He's going to get something nice in return, so we'll get him a helmet or a couple of jerseys or some other stuff. So, it was really cool of him to do that."

On Monday night, Peyton and Eli Manning had Brady as their guest on their ESPN2 "Monday Night Football" telecast to banter back and forth with the seven-time champ.

Peyton Manning teased Brady about Evans' regretful giveaway of the historic football, asking him if he got it back. Yes, Brady said.

Lloyd plays her final match for U.S. in rout of South Korea

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Carli Lloyd didn't score in her final game for the United States, but it hardly mattered. The night was all about her.

Fans chanted Lloyd's name before Tuesday night's match, a 6-0 U.S. rout of South Korea, with one holding a sign that read: "One More World Cup, Please?"

Lloyd is retiring after a career that includes two World Cup titles and a pair of Olympic gold medals. Her crowning moment was scoring three goals in the opening 16 minutes of the U.S. victory over Japan in the 2015 Women's World Cup final.

"It's been emotional. But there's just a sense of peace and contentment that I feel — it's just joy and happiness," Lloyd said. "It's been an amazing journey and I gave it all I had, and now I can walk away into the next chapter."

Lloyd's final match was her 316th with the national team, the second-most international appearances of any player. She scored 134 goals for the United States, third most in team history, along with 61 assists.

Lloyd was subbed out in the 65th minute and sobbed as she left to a standing ovation by the crowd of 18,115 at Allianz Field. She removed her cleats and pulled off her jersey, revealing another jersey with her married name, Hollins, emblazoned on the back.

"Somebody said that Carli is the U.S. women's national team. She's brave. She's relentless. She's determined, intense and just doesn't take no for an answer," U.S. coach Vlatko Andonovski said. "She just pushes through and finds a way. So I think that she's a great representative of what this team is all about."

Lloyd, 39, had hinted she was nearing the end of her career before the Tokyo Olympics. The United States won the bronze medal this summer, with Lloyd scoring a pair of goals in a 4-3 victory over Australia. She announced plans to retire shortly thereafter.

She became the first American to score in four different Olympics, and her 10 goals in the event are the most for a U.S. player.

Short-handed Bucks still too much for Pacers

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Giannis Antetokounmpo went into attack mode with the defending NBA champion Milwaukee Bucks playing short-handed Monday night.

He carried them to another victory.

Antetokounmpo finished with 30 points, 10 rebounds and nine assists, and Khris Middleton added 27 points to help the Bucks beat Indiana 119-109.

"It was really aggressive Giannis tonight," coach Mike Budenholzer said. "At the same time, he making reads, making great passes. When he's attacking like that, that's when we are at our best. He had that extra gear tonight."

It showed on a night Budenholzer held out two injured starters — center Brook Lopez and guard Jrue Holiday — as well as key backup Bobby Portis. Thanks to Antetokounmpo and Middleton, they still had enough scoring punch to pull away from the Pacers early and hold off a late charge.

Indiana has lost three of its first four games under new coach Rick Carlisle, this time with Malcolm Brogdon scoring 25 points and Domantas Sabonis with 21 points, 13 rebounds and five assists

The Pacers never led after Middleton closed the first quarter with a four-point play that broke a 30-30 tie and couldn't get closer than three the rest of the game.

"The fourth quarter was encouraging," Carlisle said. "We held them to 18 points and made some runs. The other three quarters were uneven and not good enough. We've got some things to do better and need to clean up."

In era of rampant transfers, Texas stands out

BY STEVE MEGARGEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas' Chris Beard prepared for his first season coaching at his alma mater by assembling a virtual all-star team of transfers from across the country.

Now it's a matter of finding out how quickly these new Longhorns can establish chemistry.

"Our team's a work in progress," said Beard, who coached Texas Tech to the NCAA Tournament final in 2019. "We have a lot of experience. I think that would be the identity of the team. But we're the first to tell you that we're really inexperienced playing together. It's kind of like experienced inexperience, if that makes sense."

Even in the era of the transfer portal, when just about every school annually adds at least one player who began his college career elsewhere, Beard's reconstruction of the Texas roster is noteworthy.

The fifth-ranked Longhorns' list of transfers includes forward Timmy Allen (formerly at Utah), Dylan Disu (Vanderbilt), Christian Bishop (Creighton) and Tre Mitchell (UMass) plus guards Devin Askew (Kentucky) Marcus Carr (Minnesota), Tristen Licon (Division III program Sul Ross State) and Avery Benson (Texas Tech).

Allen, who has averaged over 17 points each of the last two seasons, was a first-team all-Pac-12 player in 2021 and a second-team selection in 2020. Carr had 19.4 points and 4.9 assists per game as a first-team all-Big Ten pick last season. Disu was the Southeastern Conference's leading rebounder (9.2) last season.

Mitchell averaged 18.8 points and 7.2 rebounds for UMass last year to earn first-team all-Atlantic 10 honors. Askew played nearly 30 minutes per game for Kentucky as a freshman last season. Bishop averaged 11 points and 6.4 rebounds.

"That's why I came here — to be around the best players, be around the best coaches, be pushed each day," Carr said.

They're also hoping to have the success that eluded them at their previous stops. Benson and Bishop are Texas' only Division I transfers who played for NCAA Tournament teams last season.

"I'm a winner, and I'm looking to win championships," Allen said. "I'm looking to be surrounded by the best players in the country every day."

Other notable transfers who should make an impact for their new teams this season (former schools listed in parentheses):

BAYLOR: G JAMES AKINJO (ARIZONA)

Baylor won the national title last year thanks largely to transfers such as Davion Mitchell and MaCio Teague. Akinjo would love to continue that tradition. The 6-foot-1 guard ranked 11th in the Pac-12 in scoring (15.6) and second in assists (5.4) last season to earn first-team all-Pac-12 honors. He also shot 40.8% from 3-point range. He spent two years at Georgetown before playing at Arizona last season.

OREGON: F QUINCY GUERRIER (SYRACUSE)

Guerrier had 13.7 points and 8.4 rebounds per game for Syracuse last season. The 6-8 forward joins former Oklahoma guard De'Vion Harmon and former Rutgers guard Jacob Young as transfers on Oregon's roster. Young had 14.1 points per game for Rutgers and Harmon scored 12.9 points per game for Oklahoma last season.

MICHIGAN: G DEVANTE' JONES (COASTAL CAROLINA)

Jones was the Sun Belt player of the year last season and ranked second in the conference in scoring each of the last two years. He averaged 17.4 points in 2019-20 and 19.3 points last year. He also had 7.2 rebounds per game last season to rank eighth in the conference. The 6-1 graduate transfer should step right into a featured role with Michigan.

ARKANSAS: G CHRIS LYKES (MIAMI)

Although Lykes only played two games last year due to an ankle injury, he ranked among the Atlantic Coast Conference's top 10 scorers each of the previous two seasons. He averaged 16.2 points to rank ninth in the league in 2018-19 and had 15.4 points per game to place 10th in the league in 2019-20. The 5-foot-7 Lykes graduated from Miami this spring.

KANSAS: G REMY MARTIN (ARIZONA STATE)

This 6-footer has averaged 19.1 points each of the last two seasons and led the Pac-12 in scoring last year. Martin has earned first-team all-Pac-12 honors each of the last two seasons after being a second-team selection in 2018-19, when he was also the league's co-sixth man of the year.

KENTUCKY: F OSCAR TSHIEBWE (WEST VIRGINIA)

Tshiebwe transferred to Kentucky midway through last season but couldn't play with his new team until this year. The Wildcats hope he can provide the post presence they lacked last season, when he averaged 8.5 points and 7.8 rebounds in 10 games with West Virginia. He had 11.2 points and 9.3 rebounds per game as a freshman in 2019-20. Tshiebwe heads a list of Kentucky transfers that also includes former Davidson guard Kellan Grady and ex-Georgia guard Sahvi Wheeler.

RAIDERS

But the expected blowout never came. While the Raiders never seriously threatened to win the match, they were close enough in each set to provide the confidence they needed.

"I had people today telling me, 'just hang with them and try to score' and I think we went way beyond that," Jent said. "I'm so very proud. Simon Kenton is a very strong team. And you know, I want to be back here again next year. But just a little further."

Simon Kenton advanced to the semifinal round where it faced North Oldham on Wednesday night.

Oldham County faced off against Woodford County in the other semifinal with the championship match scheduled for 7 p.m. today.

Trimble County ends the season with a 12-16 record but with only one starter graduating, the Raiders expect strong things next year and Jent can't wait to get started.

"Four of my six starters had never played varsity before this season. So they're very inexperienced and that was the learning curve at the beginning of the season that we had to adjust to," Jent said.

"I'm losing four strong seniors that have played a really big role in this program," Jent said of Danielle Craig, Jenna Craig, Savannah Crawford and Aleah Cull. "We're gonna miss them. But we're ready for next season."

BRAVES

dugouts, clubhouse and stands to guard against any possible shenanigans.

"There's a lot more people watching what goes on as a result of the issues that we've had," he said.

Soler's no-doubt jolt into the left-field seats on Framber Valdez's third pitch quickly took all the juice out of Minute Maid Park, quieting a boisterous, sellout crowd.

Fresh off dispatching the defending World Series champion Dodgers in the playoffs, the Braves weren't done, either.

Aggressive in every way, they kept teeing off against their former, longtime National League rivals.

Moments later, Ozzie Albies stole a base and Austin Riley hit an RBI double, taking a rare swing at a 3-0 pitch.

Soler added an RBI grounder in the second and when Duvall launched a two-run homer, it was 5-0 and the Braves had made even more October history — the only team to score in each of the first three innings in a World Series opener.

At that point, Braves batters were far from the only ones making noise. The few Atlanta fans sprinkled in the sea of orange had started their familiar chant, too.

By then, it looked as if everything was going right for the Braves.

But baseball can be a fickle game, and the fates can spin faster than the best curveball.

Because in the bottom the third, Atlanta absorbed its own big hit.

As he struck out Altuve, Morton suddenly grimaced and took an awkward step. His teammates, manager Brian Snitker and a trainer soon joined him on the mound, and just like that, Morton was gone.

Turned out a hard comebacker by Yuli Gurriel that ricocheted off Morton's leg to Freeman at first base for an out to begin the second had done more damage than anyone realized.

Morton stayed in for another inning, amazingly, before gingerly walking off with a fractured right fibula.

The 37-year-old righty, the winning pitcher for the Astros in Game 7 of the 2017 World Series, will be replaced on the roster.

He's expected to be OK for spring training.
